Five Manchuria Cities Bombed
Giant Pincers Move Starts

LONDON, Aug. 9 (AP)—Soviet troops have crossed the Manchurian border on a wide front, the Moscow radio announced today. The Russians broke through a reinforced concrete defense zone and advanced nearly 10 miles on a wide front between Man Lupin (Manchouli), at the northwestern corner of Manchuria and the maritime provinces in which Vladivostok is situated, the communique announced.

They fought across the Amur river forming the frontier on the east.

Fu Yuan, a town in northeast Manchuria near Khabarovsk, and several other populated places were captured.

Moscow radio was quoted from a Soviet communique, the first since Russia went to war with Japan.

The Russians crossed Manchuria's northern border in the area of Transbaikalia, and at the northeastern tip of the country in the area of Khabarovsk.

In the sector east of Lake Baikal the Russians overcame fierce enemy resistance and stormed and captured the fortified zone of the Lupin-Dalai Nor.

Lupin and Dalai Nor both were captured.

In the area of Lake Buir the Russians also captured Jin-Jon Sume and Hoshoin Sume without meeting strong resistance, it was announced.

The Red Air Force meanwhile bombed the principal railway centers of Manchuria—Harbin, Hsinking and Kirin—and the ports of Sheitsin and Rashin, the communique said.

Khabarovsk is 400 miles north and slightly east of Vladivostok, Soviet Russia"s important port and air and naval base in East Asia, and is an important communications center near the border.

The crossing of the frontier east of Lake Baikal and in the Kharbarovsk area meant the Russians were setting into motion a huge pincers movement, apparently in an effort to trap the Japanese Kwantung army guarding the long-prepared defenses of the puppet state of Manchuria which Japan seized in 1931 from China.

Japan's Worst Day

By Associated Press

Superforts continued their punishment of Japan with an 80-plane obliteration attack on the Amagasaki oil refinery center tonight (Japan time), ending a day which brought Nippon another enemy—Russia—a second atomic bomb attack and blows by 1200 U. S. and British carrier planes.

It was Japan's worst day of the war.

The Superforts blasted the Nippon oil refinery at Amagasaki, near Osaka on Honshu island, with about 500 tons of demolition bombs in an effort to complete destruction started in other raids.

Japanese aircraft came out to attack Halsey's Third Fleet off the Nipponese coast in the first concentrated aerial effort to oppose the U. S.-British naval combination since it started raiding the enemy homeland a month ago. Several planes were seen to fall to ships' anti-aircraft fire. No Allied damage was reported.

Developments in rapid succession were:

1—Red army columns opened a gigantic pincers drive on northern Manchuria a few hours after Moscow declared war on Japan.

2—Unchallenged, 1200 bombers and fighters swept over the entire northern half of Honshu Island, "the mainland of Japan."

3—Superforts carried out a successful atomic bomb attack on Nagasaki, southern Nipponese port.

4—Allied warships, Tokyo reported, shelled the steel city of Kamaishi on northern Honshu.

5—Tokyo was raided again this afternoon by "about 100 B-29's," according to an enemy broadcast which said the Superforts hammered the industrial area of Oji Shima, Ogikubo and Tamachi. Part of the force, radio Tokyo said, also attacked Senju. No details.

Close co-operation was indicated between the fighting forces of the Soviet Union and the other big powers which asked her to join the war.

Every fighting center in the Pacific—Guam, Pearl Harbor, Manila, Chungking, Adak—heralded the declaration as shortening the war and promised co-operation.

Japan, now hopelessly surrounded, was hit by the first waves of Allied carrier planes at dawn.

Adm. Halsey's unchecked Third Fleet and co-ordinated British carrier forces made "probably the noisiest approach to enemy shores in naval history," Associated Press Correspondent Al Dopking reported, blasting away in daily practice with their antiaircraft guns at sleeve targets.

Nevertheless, the Japs were apparently caught by surprise as bombers and fighters swept over the entire northern half of Honshu. Airdromes and railways were primary targets of their rockets, bombs and machine-gun bullets.

Returned carrier pilots, who started their attacks before dawn against northern Honshu, reported many Jap planes set afire on the ground, two ships sunk and at least six others damaged.

Tokyo admitted the extensive attacks, claimed 40 were shot down, and added that big warship guns opened up on Kamaishi at midday. The steel city was previously bombarded during Halsey's July raids which cost the Nipponese more than 1000 vessels and 1300 airplanes.

Almost simultaneously with the reported bombardment, the southern Japanese industrial and shipping center of Nagasaki felt the annihilating devastation of an atom bomb.

Superfort crewmen radioed the attack—the second largest in world history—was carried out with good results.

There were no further immediate details. Gen. Spaatz's communique did not make clear whether one or several bombs were dropped.

Early expectations were that damage would be greater than at Hiroshima where, on Monday, a single atom bomb annihilated four square miles and killed "practically every living thing." Nagasaki has an estimated population of 255,000.

The record series of blows, which many thought might bring a quick end to the war, followed attacks that would have been considered heavy on any other day and were followed by a notice by the enemy's controlled Domei agency that it would issue an important announcement today.

Yesterday's attacks included round-the-clock Superfort raids of Japan, naval and aerial bombardment of Wake island and aerial attacks on three northern Kurile islands including the Katsaoka naval base, strongest point on the northern approaches to Japan.

Additionally the Allies announced 72 more enemy vessels were sunk or damaged and American-trained Chinese paratroopers are operating back of Japanese lines in China.

It was as though the roof which the Japanese wanted to extend "over the eight corners of the earth" came tumbling down on the sacred islands all at once.

"There is still time—but little time," said Secretary of State Byrnes, "for the Japanese to save themselves from the destruction which threatens them."

American propagandists took full advantage of the situation. OWI broadcasters opened an intensified radio campaign which Washington said had all the earmarks of a 24-hour ultimatum. MacArthur's bombers showered pamphlets on Japan telling of the Russian declaration of war.

In another shower of leaflets dropped in northern Philippine mountains, Lt. Gen. Oscar Griswold, commander of the 14th Army Corps, personally appealed to Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita to surrender with his 6000 surviving and cornered troops.

Widespread Allied air action against targets in Sumatra, in lower Burma and along the Bangkok-Singapore railway was announced by southeast Asia command headquarters.

Red Navy Ready

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (INS)—Russia has about a half million tons of sea power, including three battleships, 10 cruisers and 71 fleet destroyers, which she can hurl at the Japs in the Pacific.

According to an article in the current issue of the magazine Sea Power, written by William G. Oxx, Jr., the Russian Navy in June, 1945, consisted of 754,975 tons, about 500,000 tons of which can be mobilized for the Pacific war.

The President left the White House a little before noon and met Mrs. Truman at the station and then motored back to the White House.

Last Hope Doomed, Japs Face Oblivion

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—The mightiest armed forces of all history completely encircled the seared and tottering Empire of Japan today, ready to smash it into oblivion if the Japanese do not surrender within a few hours.

Russia's entry into the conflict reuniting the powers that blotted out Nazi Germany, robs the Tokyo government of its last hope for a holdout stand on the Asiatic continent. It thus shortens the war by many months even if the Nipponese choose a fight to the death.

But from the White House to the Capitol all official Washington hopes and expects that this momentous development, together with the atomic bomb campaign, will break the back of enemy resistance at once.

Use of the awful weapon reached the campaign stage today with strategic Nagasaki as its second target.

An intensified, 24-hour propaganda drive directed at the Japanese people over the heads of their leaders was opened by OWI when President Truman announced the Russian declaration at 3 p. m., Washington time, yesterday. It had the earmarks, although not the official stamp, of a 24-hour ultimatum.

Secretary of State Byrnes told a news conference:

"There is still time—but little time—for the Japanese to save themselves from the destruction which threatens them."

The atomic blow against Nagasaki could have been intended as a reminder.

Tensely, Washington waited for further developments:

1—A possible Japanese peace move or word of internal turmoil in Nippon which could lead to surrender.

2—Official announcement that the Red armies along the Siberian-Manchurian border had swung into full-scale action. Enemy broadcasts said Soviet troops were attacking on the Eastern Manchurian border and that Russian warplanes were in action.

President Truman's scheduled broadcast to the nation at 10 o'clock tonight will afford him an

Truman Calls His Top Men For Discussion on A-Bombs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—President Truman called in top military, diplomatic and scientific advisers today to discuss the atomic bomb, the terrific destructive effect of which has twice been felt by Japan.

War Secretary Stimson cancelled a news conference to attend the White House meeting. He took with him Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, who supervised secret work which harnessed for war purposes the atom's terrific energy. Groves was to have attended Stimson's news conference.

Sec. of State Byrnes, who sat beside Mr. Truman when he announced Russia's declaration of war on Japan yesterday, crossed the street to join the meeting.

Others present included these scientists who played a leading part in developing the revolutionary weapon: Dr. Vannevar Bush, director of the Office of Scientific Research and Development, and Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University.

George L. Harrison, one-time president of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, who also contributed to the vast engineering work involved, completed the group.

Big News Due, Tokyo Radio Says

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9 (AP)—The Japanese Domei News Agency today transmitted a wireless message to its bureaus and clients throughout occupied areas in the Orient instructing them to "watch for an important announcement in subsequent transmissions."

It added that a special transmission would be made at 9:30 p. m. Tokyo time (8:30 a. m. EWT) or later. No subject was hinted in the warning, issued at 3 p. m. Tokyo time.

Later Domei sent another message, telling bureaus to "stand by for possible emergency transmissions during 6 p. m., 9:30 p. m. and 11:30 p. m. periods for the three days of Aug. 9, 10 and 11," but did not indicate the specific reason.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP)—Mutual Broadcasting System said today a Japanese radio announcement for which listeners had been ordered to stand by was merely a formal announcement that Russia and Japan were at war.

The text of the Tokyo statement, as recorded by Mutual:

"As from Aug. 9, the Soviet Union will consider itself in a state of war with Japan. Simultaneously the Soviet ambassador to Tokyo will inform the Japanese government of this declaration. A little past midnight Aug. 9 the Soviets opened an offensive on the northern border of Manchukuo (Manchuria). The Kwantung army headquarters at 3:30 a. m., Japanese time, issued a communique saying that Soviet forces opened an offensive along the eastern border of Manchuoko.

"At the same time a small number of enemy planes bombed various key points of Manchukuo."

A little past midnight, according to a communique issued at 5:50 p. m., Japanese time, Soviet forces crossed the eastern and western borders of Manchukuo. Russian planes raided points in northern Manchukuo.

CLOSE TUNNEL TOMORROW

Sumner Tunnel will be closed from 2 to 5 a. m., tomorrow for repairs, Com. Robert P. Curley of the Public Works Department announced today. Curley said the divisional white strip in the tunnel roadway will be repainted.

Reds Crash Over Border, Battle on 300 Mile Front

By the Associated Press

Red army troops slashed across the eastern and western frontiers of Japan's stolen Manchuria early this morning shortly after the Russian declaration of war became effective, and sharp fighting now is in progress in all invaded areas, the Tokyo radio announced today.

RUSSO-JAP WAR BEGINS—Japan reported today that Russian troops have crossed the Manchurian border in the vicinity of Lupin (A) and at several points between Hutou and Hunchin (B). U. S. Third Fleet carrier planes hit cities of northern Honshu (C), while in southern Japan, Nagasaki was hit by an atomic bomb, following a similar attack on Hiroshima last Monday (bomb blast symbols).

A broadcast Domei dispatch said Russian forces had battered across the eastern frontier of Manchuria at several points along a 300-mile line extending southward from Hutou to Hunchun. Hutou, just across the Soviet-Manchuria border, is 350 miles east of Harbin, and Hunchun is about 240 miles southeast of that key industrial and communications center, regarded as a prime Russian objective.

A Japanese imperial headquarters' communique said the Russians struck across both the eastern and western frontiers, beginning shortly after midnight. This suggested a vast pincers movement against the crack Kwantung army, pride of Emperor Tirohito's forces, believed massed in Manchuria.

At the same time, the enemy communique said, Soviet planes raided targets in northern Korea and northern Manchuria in separate actions.

The headquarters communique asserted that part of the Soviet army opened attacks after crossing the eastern and western Manchukuo-Soviet borders while simultaneously small numbers of aircraft of the Soviet air force made separate raids on parts of northern Manchukuo (Manchuria) and northern Chosen (Korea).

"Both the Japanese and Manchukuoan armies in these areas counterattacked for self defense and now are engaged in fighting with the Soviet army."

Domei said the targets of the Soviet planes included Harbin and Kirin, capital of Kirin Province, 270 miles southwest of Vladivostok; Rashin, a Japanese naval base in Korea, and Genzan (Wonsan) a port on the eastern coast of Korea. Other points also were attacked by the Russian planes, the dispatch said.

The enemy bulletin declared puppet Manchurian troops had joined the Japanese in counter-attacks.

Tokyo said the Manchurian puppet government this morning proclaimed a defense decree for the entire nation against the Soviet army's unlawful invasion.

"At the same time," the dispatch said, "the government called an extraordinary meeting of the State Council and took steps for giving immediate full play to the nation's power, thereby putting in order the government and people's front for repulsing the Red army."

Senior members of "Dai Nippon Seijaki," most influential political party in Japan, held an emergency meeting at the Diet building in Tokyo to discuss counter measures "capable of meeting the sudden development in the war situation following the Soviet Union's declaration of war against Japan," another Tokyo broadcast said.

"It is understood the meeting will be held again tomorrow to decide the party's policy to be presented to the government as well as the high command," the broadcast added.

The Soviet radio at Khabarovsk directed the Red army to "settle an old score" with Japan, and to bend all efforts to smash Japanese imperialism "so that mankind can breathe freely after getting rid of aggression."

The special broadcast called the Japanese "the worst enemies of our people and all the peace-loving peoples of the world."

"Generalissimo Stalin is leading you to battle," the broadcast said. "The fatherland has assigned you an honorable mission —to destroy the source of aggression in the East, to assure

Reds Cheer March on Japan

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Aug. 9 (AP)—The powerful Red army was thrown into the balance against the old enemy Japan today a second after midnight, when the Soviet declaration of war became effective.

The Soviet people awaited the first news of the fighting, but neither radio nor press had carried any war dispatches from east Asia as yet.

Columns of singing Red Army men, fresh from victory over Hitler's Germany, tramped through Moscow and were cheered by crowds pouring from buiuldings a few minutes after news of the new war was announced.

In many factory meetings speakers declared their determination to liquidate the last "den of aggression" in the world and restore peace to freedom-loving people.

"The punishing sword of the United Nations will put an end to war in this part of the world, too," said one speaker.

The government newspaper Izvestia emphasized the Soviet government was "keeping the faith of its pledges to its allies" in order to achieve a "speedy ending of the war."

Red Star, hailing the decision to "remove the danger which has hung over the eastern borders of our country for many tens of years," said Japan planned an attack on Russia in the grim days when the Red army had its back to the Volga.

Had Stalingrad fallen and the Germans crossed the Volga, Japan planned to join the war on Russia, believing she was beaten and it would be impossible for the Allies to establish a second front in Europe, the Army publication said, adding:

"But the Red army scattered the plans."

So far there has been no announcement of Soviet commanders of the eastern armies, but it will be no surprise if some of the veteran commanders who turned back the Germans show up in the new theater.

End Moved Up

GUAM, Aug. 9 (AP)—Russian entry into the Pacific war brought down the sign in the censor room that said "Golden Gate by '48" and in its stead today appeared the slogan:

"Golden Gate by Sept. 8."

East-coasters competed with:

"Old Gotham here I come,

"At latest by Dec. 1."

Chiang Thanks Stalin for War

CHUNGKING, Aug. 9 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek wired Premier Stalin today his "sincerest admiration and most profound gratification" at Russia's declaration of war against Japan, which, he said, greatly heartened the entire Chinese nation.

He said the Chinese army was "proud to fight shoulder to shoulder with the Red army," and expressed the conviction Russia's armed might would hasten the collapse of a "desperate Japan."

China AAF Aided Reds in Advance

CHUNGKING, Aug. 9 (AP)—American Air Forces have been hammering Jap routes of withdrawal northward for a month with foreknowledge of Russia's entry into the war and have "seriously interfered" with the enemy's movements toward the Russian front, Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer said today.

It was understood Russia's intention to participate in the war had been known to high American officers since the Tehran conference in 1943.

Gen. Wedemeyer, commander of U. S. forces in the China theater, conferred with Russian military representatives today.

Detailed plans have been perfected with the Russians for smooth co-ordination of air, ground and sea operations against the Japs.

Hunt Clothes Of Slain Girl

Investigation into the slaying of Mrs. Mary George Saunders, 20-year-old Lowell mother, centered today in a police search for her handbag and clothing in the Dracut woods area where her skeleton was found Aug. 1.

Detectives revealed they also are still seeking the automobile which two witnesses say they saw Alphee N. Desmarais, 22-year-old Nashua, N. H., sailor, driving on the night of July 8, the last time the victim was reported seen alive.

Desmarais, who is charged with the crime, was reported in good spirits today at East Cambridge jail, after receiving visits from his mother, Mrs. Alexina Desmarias, his lawyer, and his fiancee.

Meanwhile, Atty. Edward Viola of Lowell, who was retained by the family to defend Desmarais, was completing plans to ask the district attorney for permission to have his client make a personal appearance before the Middlesex county grand jury.

Counsel said he had decided on this unusual procedure because after talking with the sailor he was convinced of the youth's innocence. He said he felt certain that Desmarais would completely vindicate himself before the grand jury and thus preclude any possibility of indictment.

Before she left today to return to her Navy station at Indian Head, Md., WAVE Eleanor Dausch, Desmarais' fiancee, sent him a note at the East Cambridge jail, telling him she would return as soon as possible.

N. E. Vets See 13 British Tars Rescued at Sea

The rescue of 13 British seamen in the North Atlantic and a waved greeting from President Truman who passed them homeward bound from the Potsdam conference aboard the U.S.S. Augusta broke the monotony of the trip back from Europe of 2078 veterans on the S. S. Montclair Victory which docked at Commonwealth Pier yesterday.

The Britishers were part of the crew of the S. S. Argus Hill which was still afire 200 miles off Newfoundland after all hands had abandoned her.

The Augusta got into radio communication with the castaway seamen and informed them to stand by to be picked up by the Montclair Victory. Other Argus Hill crew members were taken aboard the S. S. Noah Brown.

Thirteen New England veterans were on the Montclair Victory.

Docking at the Army base shortly after the Montclair Victory tied up at Commonwealth pier was the S. S. Samuel Griffin carrying 688, including 63 New Englanders.

A Mattapan veteran abroad, T-Sgt. Gerald T. Staruski of Weybosset st., attached to the 8th Army Air Force, limped with a broken ankle, his only wound, sustained while playing football near Oxford, England.

Most of the men who came home on the Montclair Victory were members of the 13th Airborne Division and the Seventh Armored Division which saw action in northern Germany along the Baltic where they made contact with Russian troops.

A number of the boys declared they found it difficult to believe a single bomb could wipe out an entire city despite the fact many of them had observed destruction wrought by 2000-pounders in Europe.

Greater Boston men aboard the Samuel Griffin included:

Sgt. Anthony J. Baglione, 30 Glenwood rd., Somerville; Sgt. Arthur A. Gorman, 153 Holworthy st., Cambridge; PFC Andrew J. Leone, 193 Endicott ave., Revere; PFC Arthur A. Dametio, 209 Salem st., Malden; PFC John H. O'Hearn, Jr., 58 North Bayfield rd., North Quincy; PFC Robert E. Shea, 25 Newport ave., South Braintree; Cpl. William J. Fitzgerald, 30 Broadway, Beverly; T-Sgt. Francis G. Conley, 53 Armandine st., Dorchester; Sgt. Leo P. Sicuranza, 25 Prout st., Quincy.

Sgt. Gerald T. Staruski, 52 Weybosett st., Dorchester; Cpl. Robert F. Anketell, 19 Water st., Salem; Cpl. Joseph R. Meinnson, 37 Burgess st., Roxbury; TSgt. Bert H. Mills, Jr., 6 Westcott ave., Beverly; Sgt. Christopher R. McCann, 9 Carver st., Somerville; Sgt. William B. Stoddard, 29 Pine ave., Brockton; Sgt. Ora J. Martin, 2½ Merton pl., Roxbury; PFC Henry J. Balboni, 19 Acadia pk., Somerville; PFC John L. French, 132 Hitchborn st., Revere.

GI Armored Like Knight of Old

DETROIT, Aug. 9 (INS)—Infantry in the Pacific now is protected by body armor, it was revealed today by the McCord Corp., which reports it is delivering the armor at a rate of more than 85,000 sets a month. The armor "vests" are being flown to the Pacific, where they have been in service for some time.

The "vest" weighs 12 pounds and offers protection against shell fragments. It covers the chest and trunk and the GI's back to the waist. The armor plate is in nine different sizes, folds into a small bundle when not in use, and may be put on or taken off quickly. The plates, embodied in a canvas garment, are made of a secret "non-ferrous" alloy which has been developed since the war began.

Marine Shot In Home Affray

With the alleged victim of a mysterious shooting near death in Weymouth Naval Air Base Hospital, Bernard Brennan, 29, of Pond st., South Weymouth, pleaded not guilty in Quincy District Court today to a charge of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and was held in $5000 for hearing Aug. 23.

Police told Judge Gertrude M. Halloran that Marine Pvt. William Derby, 24, was found on the walk in front of Brennan's home, a bullet wound less than two inches above his heart.

Patrolman Michael J. Fitzgerald said Brennan called Weymouth police headquarters last night and said, "You'd better send someone over to my house right away, I just shot a man."

Fitzgerald said Brennan's only explanation was "I didn't like the situation I found at home." He said Brennan told him he had arrived home earlier than usual.

Brennan said he was a private detective employed by the Wolf Security Service of Boston.

He is married and has two children.

Nine youngsters, including two girls, were sentenced to give up their vacations today so they can clean up the mess they made of Dearborn School annex, Roxbury.

Judge Frankland W. L. Myles in Roxbury Juvenile Court ordered them to report at the school daily and put in six hours scrubbing, sweeping, dusting and otherwise repairing the damage they caused July 23.

The work will continue until all evidence of their vandalism is removed, the judge declared. He said he would continue police charges against them from week to week until the job is done.

School officials estimated the gang caused $4000 damage.

Louisburg Sq. And Army Clash On Leashed Dogs

Bitter wrangles over whether dogs should be leashed when in streets resounded in City Hall today long after a hearing on Councilor James Bayley's proposed ordinance concluded with Beacon Hill fashionables taking a vigorous affirmative against the stalwart negatives of animal society officials and the military.

Mrs. E. Sohier Welch of Louisburg sq., asserted leashed dogs—leashes not to exceed six feet as the proposed ordinance describes—would add cubits to the city's pride and enhance its cleanliness.

She was supported by representatives of Beacon Hill and Back Bay churches, the Women's City Club, the Beacon Hill Garden Club and other civic organizations that decried the habit dogs have of roaming city streets and avenues.

Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles of the First Service Command, however, said he thought dogs were entitled to a little freedom, chided the proponents of the measure for intolerance, recalled the fine record dogs of the K-9 Division have made in the war and invited all present at the hearing to attend a ceremony on the Common this afternoon at which he will decorate wives and mothers of fallen veterans.

Gen. Miles was backed by Robert F. Sullivan, head of the Animal Rescue League, who read a lengthy statement which put his organization definitely on record as opposing the ordinance.

The city's committee on ordinances, which held the hearing, adjourned the argument for a vote before full city council session on Monday.

Truman Speaks At 10 Tonight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—President Truman will report to the nation on the Potsdam conference over all radio networks at 10 o'clock tonight in a 30-minute speech, Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said the speech, which probably also will be shortwaved abroad, will go into greater detail than the communique issued by the Big Three at the close of the meeting July 26.

Associates of the President indicated his report on the Potsdam conference probably will mention the new and revolutionary atomic bomb used for the first time against Japan.

Truman Lays Down 5-Point Plan to Spur Reconversion

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—President Truman today laid down a five-point plan designed to speed reconversion of industry to peacetime production and recommended lifting controls as soon as possible.

He said in a letter to WPB Chief J. A. Krug he hoped the WPB staff "will stay on the job" because their work is not done. The war production board, he said, can and should "play an important role in reconversion." He asked Krug to:

1. Start a vigorus drive to expand production of materials in short supply "not only because of military demands but to meet civilian demands."

2. Fix a limitation on manufacture of products which would require materials in short supply.

3. Keep broad and effective control of inventories "to avoid speculative hoarding."

4. Grant priority assistance "to break bottlenecks which may impede the reconversion process."

5. Allocate scarce materials for production of low-priced items "essential to continued success of the stabilization program."

Autopsy Reveals Poison In Mrs. Sessler's Body

Definite evidence of poison has been found in the exhumed remains of Mrs. Josephine Davenport Sessler, 34, of Searle rd., West Roxbury, acording to a report by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary to Dist. Atty. William J. Foley. The medical examiner's report followed an exhaustive series of tests conducted by himself and Dr. Raymond Collins of the Pratt Diagnostic Hospital and corroborated by Boston Police Chemist Frank Stratton and Lt. Joseph Walker, State Police chemist.

Although both Dist. Atty. Foley and Dr. Leary declined to discuss the findings, it was learned that the painstaking examination had disclosed traces of arsenic, not only in the body but in the hair as well.

It was understood from reliable sources that three inches of the hair, which was removed from the head, was found so saturated with arsenic that it was visible to the eye.

Dist. Atty. Foley declined to discuss the possibility of criminal action at the moment, but members of the police homicide squad, working on the dovetailing investigation, were reported trying to locate the source of the arsenic.

Lt. Joseph Fallon, homicide squad head and other officers visited the home of the dead woman's father and mother during the day and discussed the case at length with the parents, Patrolman and Mrs. Francis Davenport of Roseclair st., Dorchester.

Present at the gathering was Mrs. Ruth Davenport Gregory, sister of the dead woman, whose insistent pleas for an investigation finally resulted in the exhumation of the body last July 31 by order of Dist. Atty. Foley and the exhaustive pathological and police investigation.

Also present were another sister, Mrs. Rita Davenport Graham, and a brother, Patrolman Francis Davenport, Jr., recently returned to duty after service overseas with the Army.

Dist. Atty. Foley disclosed today he had received the oral report from Dr. Leary during a telephone conversation.

"Medical Examiner Leary has reported to me," he said, "and Lt. Fallon is investigating the case in all its angles. That is all I can say at the present time."

It was learned, however, that Foley had held a private conference with homicide squad officers working on the case and that as a result at least two persons were questioned concerning the discovery of poison in the exhumed remains.

It also was known that two detectives from Foley's office had been assigned to work with the homicide squad on the police end of the investigation and that an office outside police headquarters had been set up, which the officers used for examination of witnesses.

Mrs. Sessler died at City Hospital at 12:01 a. m. last May 30 after being admitted there for treatment on May 21.

The cause of death was listed as lobar pneumonia and infectious polyneuritis.

She was buried in Mt. Benedict cemetery, West Roxbury, on June 2. She left her husband, Walter E. Sessler, 36, a manual training teacher at the Abraham Lincoln School, and two children, Margery, 9, and Walter, 7.

Two days after the funeral her husband filed intentions at City Hall to wed Gloria Jean Hartford, 23, of Linden st., Boston, also a teacher in the Boston schools.

The couple were married on June 9 by the Rev. Arthur S. Payzant in Lindsey Memorial Chapel.

The exhumation and investigation was ordered as a result of the insistent pleas of Mrs. Gregory after she had been brought into municipal court on a charge of throwing eggs at Sessler's second wife.

After cautioning her against "taking things into her own hands" Judge Elijah Adlow dismissed the case without a finding.

A few hours later Dist. Atty. Foley ordered the exhumation and investigation, and the body was removed from the grave July 31

Fire Landlord Held For Manslaughter

Criticising officials for "not properly enforcing" building laws, Municipal Judge Elijah Adlow today ordered Eugene Audette, 43, of Gordon st., Allston, a real estate operator, held for the grand jury in $1000 on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the deaths of two women in a Huntington ave. apartment house.

Mrs. Bertha Jakins, 48, and Mrs. Emma Baker, 70, were burned to death May 10 during a fire in the building operated by the Gallic Realty Co., of which Audette is treasurer.

"The building laws have not been enforced properly and that is why we have these deaths," declared Judge Adlow. "There are a lot of people owning buildings in the same circumstances as this case and the sooner we stop it, the better."

City Building Inspector Theodore Eldracher testified that on several occassions he warned Audette about rubbish at the foot of a dumb waiter shaft and ordered him to remove it. He said Audette had the debris removed each time.

"If I were building inspector, I would have stopped it the day I saw it because everyone living there was in danger," declared Judge Adlow.

Soldier Guilty In Loan Robbery

An Army private who boasted that he killed a German civilian overseas and stowed away aboard a transport to return home pleaded guilty in Suffolk Superior Court today to a charge of robbing Mrs. C. Y. Robinson in her Stuart st. loan shop.

Pvt. Edward J. Rollinson, 21, of Myrtle st., Waltham, was turned over to military authorities by Judge Vincent Brogna after the youth's mother said she was repaying $150 that Rollinson admitted stealing.

Judge Brogna filed the robbery charge when the Army officials said Rollinson was a deserter and indicated he was wanted for questioning in Germany.

Rollinson is married and the father of one child.

Congress Recall Seen Unlikely

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP) —The possibility of Congress reconvening before Oct. 8, the scheduled end of its recess, was discounted strongly on Capitol Hill today.

An authoritative congressional spokesman declared there was no move afoot among either majority or minority leaders of House or Senate to call the lawmakers back to Washington, even should Japan surrender in the next few days or weeks.

The same source, with close White House connections, declared President Truman has no present intention of convening Congress.

Asleep on Blazing Bed, Mariner Dies

Found asleep on a flaming bed in the Carlton House, Warrenton st., South End, early today, a merchant mariner identified from papers on his person as Lorimer Tucker, 42, of Broadway, Newark, N. J., died of suffocation.

Dist. Fire Chief John F. Sampson and a rescue company worked for more than hour in a vain attempt to revive the victim. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Dominic Pilka of the City Hospital staff. Fire was confined to the bed and damage estimated at $50.

Marine Enlistments Rate Boston Fourth

Boston ranked fourth among the cities of the United States in the number of men obtained for the Marine Corps during the fiscal year just closed, according to a report from Marine headquarters in Washington.

The Boston record for enlistments in the Marine Corps Women's Reserve was even more impressive. New York city was the only office in the nation to exceed Boston in the number of Marine women enlisted during the year.

The City Council committee on finance will hold a public hearing at 1 p. m. tomorrow on plans for construction of the proposed $5,000,000 extension of the East Boston rapid transit tunnel to the Logan International Airport.

Representatives of the airlines, the Boston Elevated, the city transit department, and other interested parties have been invited to attend the hearing.

The tunnel extension was recommended by the State Planning Board to place the airport within 10-minute riding distance of downtown Boston for a 10-cent fare, and has been approved by Gov. Tobin. Sanction of the council, Mayor Kerrigan and the Elevated is required before construction can get under way.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 (AP) — State's Atty. William J. Tuohy said today he would seek to have set aside a divorce decree granted May 17 to Actress Arline Judge who since has remarried. The former film actress was granted a divorce on grounds of desertion from Capt. John Addams.

She was married Aug. 3 at Las Vegas, Nev., to Vincent Morgan Ryan, 41, Chicago advertising executive. Tuohy said he had evidence Miss Judge, who testified she lived in Chicago three years, had not resided here the required time.

Catholics Flay Bilbo For Attack on Jews

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 (AP)—The Committee of Catholics for Human Rights today told Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo (D.) of Mississippi: "Your conduct is a chilling deterrent to the world-wide belief that America is the symbol of democratic freedom and human rights."

The committee, whose national chairman is Sen. James E. Murray (D.) of Montana, said in its letter:

"It is a blow to the international reputation of these United States to demonstrate that a member of the United States Senate openly disparages his fellow Americans who have sprung from the soil of many lands, now liberated from a tyranny whose basic tenet was the inferiority of all others than its adherents."

The letter asked Bilbo to "rectify this impression, which can only aid every cause that is counter to human decency and internal accord."

"In a recent letter you brought to bear as an attack upon your fellow Americans of the Jewish faith the charge that their 'race denied and crucified Christ.'" The letter continued:

"In this instance, many Protestant and Catholic citizens are disturbed by your exploitation of a profound and deeply metaphysical theological doctrine for political contention.

"For common in many Christian congregations is the paramount conviction that Christ died for the sins of mankind willingly, to expiate for the sins of both you and me—the sins of every person and the sins which we may do to society."

The committee made the letter public here, saying it was a reply to "Bilbo's attacks against members of the Catholic clergy, Jews, Negroes and Italians who support a permanent fair employment practices act."

Among its members are Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio and Associate Justice Frank Murphy of the U. S. Supreme Court.

Austin Powers, union business agent, said the men would meet in Meridian Hall, East Boston. He was confident "the whole thing will be ironed out."

The number of boats idle due to the lumpers' refusal to ice them reached 19 today. Only four, icing each boat. They also sought since last Thursday when the dispute began.

The lumpers demand an increase of $2 to the existing scale of $4 a man for cleaning and icing each boat. They also sought overtime pay after 5 p. m.

Scientists in '40 Outwitted Japan's Atomic Bomb Spies

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9 (INS)—The San Francisco Examiner said today in an exclusive story that Japanese scientists attempted a year before Pearl Harbor to get America's secret of atomic power.

Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, University of California physicist, whose cyclotron was the precursor of the atomic bomb, foiled the Nipponese in what the paper called a "cloak and dagger game."

Early in 1940, shortly after uranium fission was discovered by Dr. Lise Meitner, three Japanese physicists, Drs. Iimori, Yasaki and Watanable, visited the California laboratory.

"Never losing affability," the Examinner said, "the American scientists filled eager Jap ears with a constant flow of accurate, but worthless, information.

"Then they sent the Japs away with smiles and polite handshakes, telling the Tokyo scientists they were so sorry, but a brand-new rule forbade them to open their laboratory to foreign visitors."

The Examiner identified Yasaki as a Japenese physicist who spent a year at the Berkeley laboratory several years prior to his 1940 visit.

At that time, the paper said, the laboratory was opened to the Japanese, who were furnished with blueprints of a cyclotron, the atom-smasher, for invention of which Dr. Lawrence was awarded the 1939 Nobel Prize.

The newspaper said Dr. Lawrence, who had not been apprised of the Japanese visit in August, 1940, until after the delegation was on the high seas, conveyed suspicions to Dr. Robert Gordon Sproule, University of California president.

A "brand-new rule," barring the laboratory to foreign visitors, "was promulgated by Dr. Sproul."

"The Japs never knew it, but the rule was made just for them."

Japs Can Rebuild

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 9 (AP)—The Japanese looked up out of the rubble today and decided they'd found another benefit of air raids to add to their recent statement that they were getting a lot of scrap iron.

opportunity to detail his views on the war situation as well as to report on the Potsdam conference. It was there he made the final American argument for Russian entry into the war.

If the Japanese do not surrender now the war in the Pacific and Asia may go on for a year or so. But the conviction voiced on all sides here is that even so its end will come months sooner because of Soviet participation, with a consequent saving of American lives.

The Russian and American High Commands are belived to have established close liaison, if not actual joint plans, during the military conferences at Potsdam. Russia's immediate military task apparently is to prevent the enemy from severing the railroad to Vladivostok and isolating that key land, sea and air base.

Lend-Lease supplies have been going to the Red armies through Vladivostok for several years. However, if Japan prolongs the war and more aid is needed it seems possible that the United States Navy and amphibious forces may have to clear a passageway through Japan's Kurile islands.

the security of the far eastern borders of the Soviet state."

An earlier communique from the Japanese Kwantung army headquarters at Hsinking (Changchun), quoted by Domei, Japanese news agency, had said the attack opened at 1 a. m., Japanese time. This report, broadcast at 1 p. m., Japanese time (midnight, EWT), told of Soviet air attacks, but gave no indication of the location of the actions.

The enemy broadcast, quoting a Domei English-language dispatch from Hsingking (Changchun), said the air attack was carried out against strategic points across the Manchurian border. The dispatch said the communique was released at 3:30 a. m., Japanese time.

At the nearest point the eastern border of the Japanese puppet territory, which Tokyo named Manchukuo, lies within some 30 miles of the great Soviet Pacific Base of Vladivostok. The eastern border area also includes the Chankufeng area near the northern tip of Korea, where the Kwantung army was defeated in an undeclared war with Soviet Far Eastern forces before the European war.

London reports estimated that the Japanese had some 2,000,000 men in North China and Manchuria. There was no accurate estimate of Soviet strength in the area. At last reports, the Office of War Information said, Gen. Maxim Purkaev was in command of the Soviet Far Eastern Army, succeeding Gen. G. M. Stern, who now is listed as a member of the high command.

Dr. Compton Sees Atomic Bomb Saving Many Lives

By SPENCER DAVIS

MANILA, Aug. 9 (AP)—One of the world's greatest physicists, Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, described the atom bomb today as "the most portentious scientific achievement in history."

Compton told correspondents at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters he believed that despite the atomic bomb's terrible potency" it will have a tendency to "actually reduce the number of lives lost in the war—certainly for America and possibly also for Japan itself, if her rulers are sensible enough to realize what may be in store for them and act accordingly."

Dr. Karl T. Compton

The gray-haired scientist is here with Dr. Donald Leet, professor of geophysics of Harvard University and noted authority on earthquakes, to set up a Pacific branch of the Office of Scientific Research and Development (OSRD).

Compton is director of the Pacific branch of OSRD, composed of civilian scientists who throughout the war have supplemented the research and development of the War and Navy Departments.

He and his associates played a leading part in the development of the atomic bomb.

"The brilliance was so great that it was blinding. We had been warned to look away. One man failed to heed the warning and he was blinded," Dr. Leet said.

Dr. Leet said he would much rather go through a major earthquake than be within a mile of the radioactive explosion. He added the warning that although this is an "unbelievable and fantastic advancement for science, let's not go overboard in ascribing too great power to it."

Chicken Riddle

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 9 (AP)—The OPA annexed a brand-new headache today, trying to answer the riddle: When is a chicken not a chicken?

Local dealers say it's when the fowl is bought as a pet. Then, they contend, it is not subject to OPA price ceiling.

OPA finally has advised perplexed citizens to ask for a "chickie" if they want a pet.

Petain's Secret Allied Aid Told

PARIS, Aug. 9 (AP)—A witness testified at the trial of Marshal Petain today that the old soldier resisted efforts of several Vichy ministers to ask German help in repelling the Allied landings in North Africa.

The witness, Maj. Edouard Archembeaud, said Petain sent two telegrams to North Africa, one ordering continued resistance, and the other ordering a cessation of hostilities.

Adm. Jean Darlan, then Petain's right-hand man but soon to become a collaborator with the Allies in Algiers, sent American armistice terms to Petain on Nov. 10, recommending their acceptance, the witness swore. He said Germany violently opposed the armistice between France and the Allies.

The witness testified that as a result Petain published a telegram to Darlan disavowing him and ordering him to continue the battles. At the same time, the major said Petain sent a secret message to Darlan supporting Darlan's recommendations.

Lawyer Blamed In Estate Loss

Seeking an accounting of her husband's estate, Mrs. Louise S. Holloway of Boston and Swampscott, testified today at a master's hearing that "negligence, misrepresentation and unauthorized transactions" by her attorney caused her to lose $47,523.

She told Master W. Lloyd Allen that Atty. Franklin E. Smith of Boston was entrusted with handling her affairs following the death of her husband, Edwin, in 1929. She said he was co-executor of her husband's estate.

Mrs. Holloway testified that Smith organized a paper company and invested her funds in the venture without notifying her. She said she learned of the investment through a friend to whom she claimed Smith had sold stock in the same company.

The hearing is continuing.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

5 Lost When Sweeper Sinks

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—The minesweeper YMS 39 was blown apart by a Japanese mine and lost five of her crew on June 26, during preinvasion minesweeping operations off Balikpapan.

Announcing this today, the Navy said nine crewmen and two officers were injured, none seriously. The ship carried 37 officers and men and many were blown overboard by the blast. The broken ship sank in 10 seconds. Loss of the vessel had been reported previously but without any detail.

The 32 survivors were in the water for an hour and a half about 1500 yards from a Japanese-held beach from which 3-inch shells had been fired at the minesweepers the previous day. Sullivan said he constantly expected the enemy to fire on them but "they must have had the afternoon off because they didn't fire a shot."

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—Can a soldier obtain a divorce without his wife's consent? F. M., Cambridge.

A—Not in this state. Wife must be notified of action through due process and may contest the petition unless desertion charged.

Q—I would like to know if there is any provisions for the parents of servicemen to receive free medical care. I have five sons in the service for more than three years and do not receive any allotments from them. Now my husband (64 years of age), is ill and unable to work. With income stopped and doctor's bills to be paid we are feeling the pinch. R. D., Arlington.

A—You should request that allotment application be filed in your behalf by one or more of sons. Regarding medical assistance contact the Home Service Bureau of the Arlington chapter of Red Cross. Request that office also to furnish you with the necessary allotment applications. They will assist you in filing them.

Q—My husband is now in Italy with the 1086 Eng. Depot Co. Could you tell me if he will be home by September or Christmas at the latest? A. I., South Boston.

A—Sorry, Madam, but it is impossible to obtain such information from War Dept. They will release information regarding returning outfits just prior to departure from European ports. Such data is found in the column entitled, "The Boys Come Home," published daily on another page of this newspaper.

Q—Is the insurance provided by the government for World War II servicemen the same as that provided members of the armed forces in World War I?

K. S. Brockton

A—No. The acts providing insurance for the service men of the two wars are different, but protection afforded and rates are almost the same. The main difference is that World War I War Risk Insurance or U. S. Government insurance provided total permanent disability and lump sum payments. World War II or National Service Life Insurance does not have these provisions. Payments upon death under latter policies are monthly.

Q—I am the mother of an illegitimate child and his father has been in the service for over two years. Is it too late for me to file allotment application and will I get back allowances. Where do I file? D. M., Watertown.

A—It is possible for you to file for allotment now, provided the father will recognize the child as his. No back allowance payments are allowed. Advise you to contact Personal Affairs Branch, First Service Command Hospital, 808 Commonwealth ave., Boston, for application, etc.

Q—I have a son in the Marines who was seriously wounded on Okinawa and was awarded the Purple Heart. He is now convalescing somewhere on the Mariana Islands. Would like to know if he is entitled to a discharge? E. J., Hudson, N. H.

A—That is a question only medical officers of the Marine Corps could answer. Does not necessarily mean he will receive discharge due to wounds. Would be discharged only in event he is physically incapacitated for further military duty.

Q—Is it possible for a serviceman's wife to go to Panama to visit husband, as he is stationed there for the duration? "Anxious Anne," Everett.

A—At present transportation facilities to Panama are not available for civilian travel. After restrictions are lifted you will be allowed to visit.

Q—My husband is overseas and has got into trouble there. As a result he has a child by another woman. I have received a notice from the government that I will receive $20 additional Family Allowance for the child. Does this mean the child will be sent me? I do not want this responsibility and would like to know what I can do about it? E. S. A., Portland.

A—The allowance added for the child will be paid to the person having care and custody of it. Apparently husband applied for a reauthorization form to add another dependent and that was sent you in error. It does not mean child being sent you. If the $20 is included in your next check, it is in error and the Office of Dependency and Benefits, Newark, N. J., should be notified.

Q—Do you have any information on the return of the 101st Infantry of the 26th Division to the U. S.? M. F., Brookline.

A—Scheduled for October, but possibly might be sooner according to the rapid rate they are being transported back to this country.

Q—Is it possible for a serviceman to be turned down for Government insurance on account of a broken bone? Can he demand it when he is sent overseas? B. S., Walpole.

A—It is suggested that he take the matter up with his company clerk or personnel officer.

Irish Gypsy King Wins Bride

GALWAY, Eire., Aug. 9—Whether Martin Ward drank Patrick Dodd under the table or knocked him for an Irish loop remained a mystery today to everyone but Ireland's tinker tribe.

But Ward was hailed as king-elect as 5000 members of the gypsy bands who roam the country in caravans, mending pots and pans and selling horses and goats, collected at Connemara for a coronation ceremony tomorrow night.

In secret preliminary contests of drinking, fighting and boasting—in which anyone who got drunk or fell asleep was eliminated—candidates for the past two weeks have vied for the title of king. With it goes the right of free meals and free drinks anywhere in the "kingdom," a gift of four horses, and the best of the gypsy caravans, and the choice of tinker colleens as a bride.

The contest finalists were Ward and Dood. Somehow Ward managed to prove he ranked highest "for ability to take drink like a gentleman, for physical strength, and for the record in settling quarrels among the tribes."

Shangri-La Diary

MARGARET HASTINGS tells in the following chapter of "Shangri-La Diary" how she first made friends with the valley queen only to fall out of grace when the king decided he wanted the pretty white girl to share his throne.

OWEGO, N. Y., Aug. 9 (INS)—Royalty was neither remote nor inaccessible in "Shangri-La." Back in Little Hidden Valley, Pete—the local chief—and his wife had been our devoted friends. Now in the larger valley of "Shangri-La," the chief and his queen were equally friendly. Within 48 hours after our arrival at the glider strip, the queen and I were boon companions.

All we lacked, from the American point of view, was a front porch and a couple of rocking chairs. Again, it was a case of the understanding heart, for neither of us was ever able to understand a word of the other's language. Only once was that understanding strained.

I went in and out of the village every day with Sgt. Baylon when he paid his medical calls, and Sgt. Valasco, who always accompanied him. Sometimes the queen would come halfway down the trail to meet me. Occasionally the trail was rough or we would have to cross small streams with precarious log bridges.

"Queen, I'm not so good at this. I guess you'll have to help me," I'd say when we'd come to a bad place in the trail. She always knew what I meant. The queen would take my hand in hers and give me an assist along the way.

Once the sergeants teased me because I couldn't keep up with them. But only once. The queen obviously sensed from their tone that they were making fun of me. She turned on them and there was no mistaking the fact that they were getting a royal dressing down, for such unseemly behavior toward a royal guest.

Queen Mary in all her furbelows and turbans never looked or acted more regal than this little black woman dressed only in a jungle G-string. We used to pass the community commote patch on the way to the village. There were always several native girls working in this one-crop garden. Whenever they stopped to stare at us and giggle, the queen gave them a piece of the royal mind. Obviously, she was telling them to get back to work and stop wasting their time.

The queen would roast these sweet potatoes for me when I came to call. We would sit around in the one-story communal room where the women did the cooking and munch hot potatoes. I never could get them to try the potatoes with the butter I'd bring over from camp.

This communal room, around which the other thatched huts were clustered, was about 12 feet long and only three or four feet wide. There was always a fire burning at one end. As soon as the sergeants, the queen and I went into the narrow little room, natives would pile in after us until not even "S. R. O." remained.

The queen was a dignified hostess as she handed around sweet potatoes and lighted our cigarets from the community fire. It was obvious that her majesty did not think much of my GI clothes. She did her best to get me to swap them for the G-string of woven twigs worn by herself and her ladies in waiting. I just clutched my khaki the tighter about me.

Oddly enough, it was something no more compromising than a 10-cent comb that almost brought a rift between myself and the queen. One day when I was visiting her in the village, I absent-mindedly took a comb out of the pocket of my GI shirt and ran it through my hair.

The queen was enchanted. She had never seen a comb before or anyone doing such queer things to hair. The other natives were equally delighted with this toy. Half the village gathered 'round and I combed my hair until my arm was tired.

Finally, I handed the comb over to her majesty. But she wanted to comb my hair, not her own woolly locks. She carefully combed my hair down over my face. Just as carefully, I combed it back. But the queen took the comb and again my coiffure was over my face.

Sgt. Valasco was about to put a stop to this beauty business when the chief decided to join the game. He started to run his hands through my hair. This was a good-will gesture from which I shrank inwardly. But I didn't want to offend him and his followers. So I sat still a moment and said "uhn-uhn-uhn" at what I deemed were appropriate intervals in his conversation.

What the conversation was all about I had no more idea than the man in the moon until I caught a glimpse of Sgt. Valasco's face and then the queen's.

The sergeant, in his three weeks at the glider strip, had picked up a smattering of the native jargon. And whatever the chief was saying, St. Valasco didn't like! When I looked at the queen, I could see that she liked it even less. Suddenly the queen burst into excited and vehement conversation.

"Scram," Sgt. Valasco said to me in a tone that gave wings to my feet as we left the village.

"I guess you could have swapped the title of Corporal for that of Queen," the sergeant said as he hurried me back to camp. "Yessir, as near as I can make out, you could have been queen.

"But I don't think it would have been a very healthy occupation or one with much of a future," the sergeant continued. "I guess you might have been queen but I also suspect you might have been dead. I don't think the present queen would have liked it."

"But I don't want to be queen," I said indignantly. "I just want to get out of this valley."

"I hope you can make the queen believe that story," the sergeant said.

I was more upset than elated at the offer of a crown. I liked the queen and I certainly didn't want to make any enemies in "Shangri-La." I wondered what on earth the queen would do, next time we met.

She did nothing, as a matter of fact, except be her old friendly self. Apparently she didn't hold the episode against me. But back at camp, we all had a feeling that the chief had probably caught a proper wigging the moment I fled the village.

The queen tried to get me to stay in the day room and sleep there. Sgts. Valasco and Baylon told me they were certain she wanted to adopt me. But I didn't think my father back in Owego would like that very much.

The other village women were friendly, too, and equally willing to adopt me. At least, their eagerness for me to be one of them almost cost me four fingers one day when we were visiting in the village. By this time, I had persuaded the chief to let McCollom and Decker visit the village ,too. And thank goodness I did, for the lieutenant saved my fingers.

As we were sitting around, hobnobbing with our village friends, several of the women gathered around me. Through sign language they told me to put out my right hand. As I did so, one of the women raised a stone axe to strike my hand.

I was so amazed by this first sign of violence in the natives that I could scarcely move. It was McCollom who leaped in and shoved me aside.

"They aren't trying to kill you, Maggie," McCollom said. "This is just all good, clean fun. They have a peculiar custom. When a girl is of marriageable age, they chop off the tips of all the fingers on her right hand. I guess this is a hint to you to nab one of us handsome guys."

I still have all my fingers!

In every way, we got along phenomenally well with the natives. Within a day after his arrival, Alex Cann, the photographer, had a crew of natives following him around, carrying his equipment for him. Far from being superstitious of the two medics, the natives worshipped them.

Only once did Capt. Walters interfere with the free medical service. One of the village women had a baby. The natives wanted Sgt. Baylon's help during the delivery. But the captain forbade it, fearing that if anything happened to the woman or the baby, the natives might turn on all of us.

We never found a single shred of evidence in either valley that the natives had a trace of religion. There were no idols, no altars, nothing to indicate that they worshipped any force in or out of nature.

"They're believers in mankind and that's about all the religion they seem to have," Capt. Walters once explained.

Capt. Walters and Alex used to take long walks over Shangri-La. They came to the conclusion that the natives were a dying race.

They seemed a peaceful people, although suspicious of persons from other villages or different parts of the valley. Really friendly relations existed only between two or three neighboring villages, but no more. There was no federation or united states of Shangri-La. Each village had its own chief, but there was no over-all head man for the whole valley.

The only evidences of warfare we ever saw were several skeletons along a native trail we followed one day when we tried to explore the river. One warrior had been shot through the heart with an arrow. Another had died from a spear driven through his head.

Every piece of equipment we had in camp fascinated the natives. Yet they wanted none of it. They would use a good GI ax or jungle knife when doing work for us. But they reverted to the stone ax the minute they had anything to do for themselves. They would never accept an ax or a machete from us.

ATOM BOMBS

THE DESTRUCTIVE force released against key Japanese cities and military strong points in the form of the new atomic bomb is a frightening and fearful thing to contemplate, and its use is only justified by the prospect it affords of shortening the war and saving American lives.

That this will be accomplished at the cost of almost incomprehensible destruction and loss of lives in Japan goes without saying, and no civilized nation views such destruction with equanimity or undertakes it with pleasure.

But the Japanese nation, having chosen to live by the sword, is being visited by the implacable penalty of such a course—and will inevitably and inexorably die by the same means, if it persists in its fanatical and suicidal resistance.

Japan has had the offer of a national existence with peace and dignity, with survival of her cultural and economic and spirtual life, and with ultimate place of respect in the world family of nations.

Japan's only alternative, as the new and fearsome atomic bomb proves, is a matter of her own last remaining choice—disintegration and obliteration.

AS PRESIDENT TRUMAN and Secretary of War Stimson have said, in announcing the first release of the atomic bomb against Japan, the peaceful and constructive and beneficial uses of such a force are beyond calculation.

It has unmeasurable and unimaginable possibilities for the improvement and betterment of the conditions of living among all nations and all peoples.

It is being used now to frustrate evil, and to restore peace to the world.

In the right hands, it will always oppose evil and preserve peace.

But this poses a great problem and creates a great responsibility.

Such a force, now the servant of men and nations seeking a peaceful and productive world, must never be the servant of evil men and nations striving for their own aggrandizement.

Our best assurance that it will always serve the interests of peace and not the cause of evil may well be found in the recent proposal by the Kilgore Committee of the United States Senate for a PERMANENT American agency to maintain American proficiency and superiority in all scientific fields related to war and national defense and the well-being of mankind.

THE HARNESSING of atomic power has been the achievement of American science.

It is being hailed, and seems capable of assuring us of the fulfillment, as the instrument which will give us victory and peace.

Let us assure ourselves, immediately and perpetually, that all of the world's powers and forces will be harnessed by our own men of science, for our own peace and security and for the peace of the world and the freedom of mankind.

Let us reflect upon the goodness of our fortune that this devastating weapon has been entrusted to our hands, and not to the hands of our enemies.

This is a good fortune that cannot be without Divine wisdom and intention.

Let the American government and the American people, after availing themselves of the DESTRUCTIVE uses of so great a force, vindicate the judgment thus placed upon them by finding and utilizing and controlling the same force for the benefit of humanity.

"YOU, while your babes around you cling, shall show us how divine a thing a woman can be made," said Wordsworth. "Perhaps a better woman after all, with chubby children hanging on my neck to keep me low and wise," said Elizabeth Browning. "Is not a young mother one of the sweetest sights life shows us?" asked Wordsworth.

Dorothy Parker

That Biblical quotation is not "money is the root of all evil," but "the love of money is the root of all evil." Dorothy Parker did not say "men never make passes at girls who wear glasses." She said "men SELDOM make passes at girls who wear glasses." But tops in misquotations is still "Gilding the lily." Shakespeare said: "To gild refined gold, to paint the lily." A good way to keep this in mind is to memorize what Byron wrote:

"Shakespeare says 'tis very silly.
To gild refined gold, or paint the lily."

WEIGHING MACHINES: When the man is weighing what you have bought, how closely do you watch the scales? A scales expert investigating the "short weigh" situation says many crafty shopkeepers have the scale indicator two ounces or more on the heavy side to begin with. The customer practically never notices at what point the indicator starts but only where it finishes. So many people are given two ounces or more less than what they paid for. This can amount to quite a loss over a long period. It can also mean quite a profit to the chiseling shopkeeper. The scales expert aforementioned recently found five scales in one store all with the weighing machine indicators starting at two ounces.

PLEASE NOTE: Why is it men are better hairdressers than women? Or are they? Who is the current leading expert in the art of hair-do? Anyway, this department is advised by a member of the WACs, just returned from abroad, that the British believe the world's greatest hair-do genius is a 16-year-old London girl named "Pat" Abbott. Q—A stogie says you can't name the major league pitcher who lost the most games in one season. A—You probably have me stopped. However, there was a fellow named Hughey who pitched for Cleveland and lost 29 games in one season. That seems hard to top. Q—What do you mean by casting such a reflection on Victor Herbert's career as to say he was "once a piccolo player?" A—What's wrong with being a piccolo player? Isn't a piccolo player a musician in good standing? Is there a social scale in the musical world based on what instrument is played? Anyway, I still insist Victor Herbert was once a piccolo player.

SAYS SHE: "So many women find it impossible to buy shorts for their husbands as the shops have none in stock," writes a Detroiter. "That type of wife gives me a very great pain. Why don't they go to a dry goods store, buy some material and make shorts for their husbands? That's what to do. It is surprising how many wives are helpless, inefficient types. Then there are those women who are just plain lazy and shiftless. The men get the blame for the increase in divorced couples in recent years, but I think in the majority of cases the women are to blame. A wife who doesn't know her job soon loses her husband."

ASIDES: A Brooklynite informs me she has named her girl baby Leslie. That's discouraging. If I can't even put my campaign against male names for females over in Brooklyn, perhaps I had better give it up . . . Hy Sehneider, veteran turf scribe, swept the card one day recently at Bing Crosby's Del Mar track. Hy picked eight winners. I picked eight winners once at Tijuana, but there were 14 races that day . . . FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Copyright, 1945, by King Features Syndicate)

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—An Army captain in the Pacific has written to ask whether it is true that in that brave new world of the future, should we live to see it, he may be compelled to join a union or go without a job. I have sent him a note telling him that he will, but I feel that he and a few million other servicemen would like to know more about their status as citizens and veterans of the war in relation to the unions.

Westbrook Pegler

These men have an idea that when they come marching home they will stand for no restrictions on their right to work imposed by such political bosses of their sub-government as Sidney Hillman, Dave Dubinsky, Jimmy Petrillo and old Dan Tobin.

Well, I am sorry to have to say that they are wrong.

In the first place, the minute a soldier takes off that uniform he is just another civilian. That little gilt button in his left lapel doesn't mean a thing. Of course, the unioneers will try to woo him in with little concessions such as free initiation, but, if he gets tough and insists on a job without joining, they can be tougher because they are organized and he is just a loner like any other individual civilian.

But when you tell people that they say what do you mean they aren't organized? Haven't they got the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars and this New Deal Trojan horse thing which bobbed up at the San Francisco conference, claiming to represent the discharged fighting men?

WELL, I will tell you what about them, too. They will lobby through many cash benefits, some of them disguised as loans, and subsidies to help the veterans start lunch-wagons, but they won't tackle the unions. For one reason, the unions will plant a lot of smart political manipulators in these organizations to bore from within and either take them over or neutralize them. And any veterans' organization that honestly tries to establish for its members the right to work without joining will be smeared as a Fascist movement with all the standard dirty implications such as Jew-baiting, Jim-crowism and union-busting.

These people have been siphoning off about one thousand million dollars a year in war profits and, as they have often said themselves, in attacking the soulless corporations, money in such amounts is a tremendous power in politics. Already they print a lot of weekly papers and they are now talking up among themselves a national daily propaganda paper.

DO YOU THINK the boss unioneers would hesitate to call a veteran a dirty Fascist for insisting on his right to a job without a union card, even though he should wear a Medal of Honor for bravery in smashing Fascism at Anzio or Cassino? You wait and see.

You have heard a lot about the GI Bill of Rights, but you will not find one word which recognizes any right of a discharged fighting man in conflict with the privileges that were granted these unions by the GIs' late revered commander-in-chief. The unions come first.

They get first chop at your pay because if you don't pay up on time you can't earn any income on which to pay a tax to Uncle Sam. They come before the church because, again, if you don't keep up in your owings to the union, you can't earn a dime or quarter for the collection plate.

They come before your family in the same way and, unlike the Treasury and the church, they don't carry delinquents.

OR SUPPOSE you do make a horry from Old Sam and start that lunch-wagon or a little trucking business and hire some of your old comrades from Okinawa to fry two, or move a little cargo around your home county.

If you don't make those fellows join up and shower down to the unioneers they will picket your greasy spoon with signs stating that the food is full of ptomaine; they will expel from other unions any of your customers who refuse to boycott you, and they will strike the plant of any neighborhood business man who goes through their pickets to trade with you. Or, if you are the one with the little trucking business, they will pull strikes against any firm that hires you to deliver cargo and any firm that accepts it.

Hollywood Today

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 9—All that guessing about Joan Crawford's plans can be forgotten. She's not going to M-G-M—she's not going to make a picture for Hal Wallis. She's going right back to Warner Brothers. Jack Warner just back from New York, tells me he has bought a romantic drama, "For Sentiment and Reasons," by Starr Paret, for Joan. She has made all her arrangements to go to New York in October. She'll be in the big town just when "Mildred Pierce" has its premiere and she'll do this movie when she gets back.

Joan Crawford

Joan won't get Mike Curtiz this time, because Charles Hoffman has been assigned to direct her. She's so crazy about Mike and says he's one of the greatest directors for whom she has ever worked. Speaking of Mike reminds me of an amusing story. He was late for a story conference the other day and said, "I'm sorry, I can't keep it —I ran like a fire hydrant."

SAM WOOD has lined up a "passel" of movies to make in his fling as an independent producer. Backed by eastern money, and with the promise of such stars as Claudette Colbert, Ginger Rogers, Ingrid Bergman and Don Ameche to star in at least one for him, Sam announces "The Land Is Bright," "Mission to Africa," "Jubal Troop" (that thing again!) and "Tatiana." The latter will be filmed in France, with Ingrid Bergman starring—he hopes. I envy him the privilege of being his own boss and traveling where he wants to make his films. There is also one lined up for English production—"Turnip Blood."

HOLLYWOOD can't always outguess the scientists, but it doesn't do badly. "Notorious," originally, was the story of the invention of an atomic bomb and the attempt of the Germans to use it against this country. Up to then the atomic bomb was just an idea and no one knew what it was all about. Now that it has come out in the open as an American invention, there will have to be radical changes made in the story. I talked to Alfred Hitchcock, the director, and William Dozier, production head of RKO today, and both gentleman admitted the story, acquired from David Selznick must be changed before it gets going in September with Ingrid Bergman and Cary Grant.

THE ANDREWS SISTERS write that they had a funny experience for themselves in Caserta, Italy, where they stopped on their USO tour. The girls were walking down a street with an American officer and they noticed three casket-ladened hearses being pulled through the streets. The girls remarked how sad it is that so much death continues even with the war in Italy ended. "Don't waste your tears, girls," laughed the American officer. "You're witnessing one of the biggest rackets over here. Those caskets are filled with cigarets because that's the way the black market smuggles them in." That's something new, isn't it — a Black Maria market?

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: My friend, Cpl. Bill Lundigan, has gone back to the hospital in San Diego. But in a very cheerful frame of mind, I must say. The girl friend, Rene Morgan, has set Aug. 18 for the wedding. It's the day after her birthday, she told me when she called with the news. They'll be married in Huntington Beach by Father Lehart. When Bill gets out of the Navy I reckon he'll go back to Warners as he was just starting on his way to becoming a fine actor when Uncle Sam tapped him on the shoulder.

NOW COMES Erich Maria Remarque with his first book in four years, and naturally, the movies are all agog. The new Remarque book, "The Arch of Triumph," will be published in the fall and although all the studios have read the galley proofs and like it, the asking price of $200,000 is stumping them. That's a heck of a lot of money, yet, M-G-M is considering it. It's described as a great love story with a marvelous woman's part. If M-G-M should buy it, it would go to Katharine Hepburn or Greer Garson. Sounds a little different from "All Quiet on the Western Front," Remarque's best seller after the last war.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Saw Marcelite Boles at luncheon and she laughed over the reports that she is getting a divorce. Says she bought a ranch at Reno and John is coming out to join her; Cary Grant has bought a small house in Bel-Air. The mansion he occupied with Barbara Hutton is for sale; Diana Barrymore, with Bramwell Fletcher, pounds thinner, was at the Pendleton party Sunday. They open here in "Rebecca" Monday; Lt. Charlie Farrell, handsomer than ever, at Ciro's with his wife, Virginia Valli; the Chester Morrises have bought the Ralph Bellamy home. Mrs. Bellamy is seeking a stage career now under the name of Katherine Willard; Ann Miller and her mother are back from a four days' trip to Las Vegas with her big romance, Harry Karl, shoe manufacturer. Everyone thought they might marry there; the heart of Hollywood goes out to Lynn Bari and Sid Luft, who lost their baby girl at birth. Lynn so wanted to have a baby.

EVA GABOR talked with her mother in Lisbon, but she is still unable to get her into this country; a wonderful tribute was paid Winfield Sheehan at the luncheon given Eddie Rickenbacker in Cleveland, where the premiere of "Captain Eddie" was held. Affectionate tribute was paid to Winnie, who produced the movie. Roz Russell took with her to Washington, a finished script on "Sister Kenny," written by Dudley Nichols. The movie is at long last scheduled to start in two months, as soon as Marlene Dietrich gets rested. She'll ask for permission to make a four weeks' tour of the Pacific fighting fronts.

Southern Treat

By MARTHA LEE

"SOUTH OF THE BORDER —Down Mexico Way," good cooks do strange and wonderful things with spices and peppers and hot sauces. But in this country, since we like such peppery dishes toned down a bit, good cooks retain the spirit of Mexican cookery in a somewhat modified form.

An excellent example is Mexican meat pie, which would do honor to the appetite of the hungriest caballero, but is designed as a satisfying main dish for family or party service in this country. This blend of meat and flavorful sauce owes part of its success to its interesting flavor, a combination of onion, minced parsley, bay leaf, cayenne pepper, cloves, mace, salt and pepper—as happy a union of seasonings as ever went into a meat pie.

The finishing touch to Mexican meat pie is its topping of oven-popped rice cereal. A large shallow casserole or baking dish is best for the Mexican meat pie—but it is particularly attractive when served in a gay-bordered Mexican casserole.

SUPPER MENU

Mexican Meat Pie
Crisp Green Salad
Chiffonade Dressing
Honey Baked Peaches
Coffee

MEXICAN MEAT PIE

3 tbsp. shortening
2 cups chopped onion
1 lb. ham (cut in ½ inch cubes)
1 lb. veal (cut in ½ inch cubes)
4 tbsp. flour 2 cups tomatoes
1 tbsp. minced parsley
½ bay leaf
½ tsp. cayenne pepper
2 whole cloves ½ tsp. mace
½ tsp. salt ¼ tsp. pepper
2 cups oven-popped rice cereal

Melt shortening, add onion and meat. Cook until lightly browned. Add flour and mix well. Add remaining ingredients except rice cereal and turn into a large shallow baking dish. Top with cereal and bake in moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 35 minutes. Makes 9 or 10 servings

CHIFFONADE DRESSING

½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. sugar
½ tsp. dry mustard
½ tsp. paprika
½ cup salad oil
2 tbsp. mild vinegar
1 tsp. onion juice
1 tbsp. each minced celery, sweet pickles, green pepper or stuffed olives
1 chopped hard-cooked egg

Mix dry ingredients thoroughly, add oil and stir until well blended. Add vinegar and onion juice, and beat or shake well until mixture thickens slightly. Beat or shake well just before serving. Makes about ½ cup. (A small piece of ice added just before serving makes the mixture thicken at once. For a mixed vegetable salad, more salt may be added.)

HONEY BAKED PEACHES

8 peach halves
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup honey
1 tsp. cinnamon
3 tbsp. butter or margarine

Arrange peaches in shallow greased baking dish. Pour over the lemon juice and honey. Sprinkle with cinnamon and dot with butter or margarine. Bake in moderate oven at 350 deg. F. Serve hot with cream.

What Friendship Demands

It was a very wise person who said, "Friendship, like a farm, needs constant cultivation." To be a real friend, you must have not only affection and devotion, but also understanding, sympathy, patience, loyalty, and the wish to be of help and to serve on the sunny days and on the cloudy days as well, and with even more fidelity.

The Correct Thing

By ELINOR AMES

THIS IS WRONG! It's permissible to look in your mirror while at the table, but if that look shows you that your hair needs combing, leave the table. It is extremely bad form (and far from sanitary) to comb the hair in public.

Hot Oil Treatment Restores Hair

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

YOUR HAT will be your crown next fall . . . and what a crown . . . and the hair that poises it better be as sleek and silky as the satin or velvet of which the hat is fashioned. Veils are frankly and honestly veils . . . not mere diaphanous wisps to encourage coyness . . . and frequently the hairdo becomes part of the garniture and architectural definition of the hat.

You'll have to aim high in head fashions . . . and woe unto the head that lacks lustre and vitality and even seems a little drab. And, if your scalp is troubled with that foul fiend . . . dandruff . . . and you have excessive loss of hair accompanied by itching . . . your topknot will be anything but a crowning glory . . . and the stunning topper will rest on a mess of fog rather than a haloed dias.

What does your mirror say? Mirrors, of course, help you "fix" your hair . . . but that's about all. The condition of your hair depends on you. Hair doesn't just sprout up and grow away self-sufficiently upon your head. You can't regard your hair in the same esthetic, semi-detached way with which you might regard a rose bush in your garden. This garden is you. You are both garden and gardener . . . and if your topknot is a prize-winning thatch it is all to your credit.

REPLENISHES THE NATURAL OILS

There is one person who can help you by furnishing the right tools. She happens to be a woman who was bald until she was in her teens. In London . . . where her father was a famous doctor . . . she spent a number of years in research work at St. Thomas . . . one of the finest London hospitals. From this work and the information she garnered . . . she was able successfully to give herself a most luxuriant head of hair. Truly something!

Her scalp products have been on the market for more than half a century. And among them is a wonderful hot oil treatment and a cream which contains oils to help replenish the natural oils that have been lost to your hair. On alternate nights after your 100 strokes of vigorous brushing you use the oil which contains all the necessary minerals and the cream which is massaged into the scalp. Both the cream and the oil will help correct dandruff or falling hair and dryness

For the name of these remarkable preparations, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ONLY WHEN the hair is luxuriously beautiful can you go in for such high style as is demonstrated by this model . . . only then can you give yourself an aura of stained glass saintliness . . . as suggested in this Flemish headdress . . . when you tuck the corner of a jewel-rich Glentex chiffon square under a gold chain wound round your topknot . . . and let the opposite point fall to the waistline in back.

Should Wait Until She's 21

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—I've been going out with boys since I was 16, but always with my parents' consent. I'm almost 21 now. Whenever I'd get serious, my parents would break it off and say to wait until I became of age.

I'm really in love now with a young man my own age, whom I've known all my life. He had a good job before he went into the service and will get it back after the war. He has a bank account, and doesn't drink or smoke. When I showed my parents the diamond engagement ring, dad flew into a rage, and said to give it back and dismiss the boy. They really have nothing against him.

I've tried going out with other friends, but how can a girl be happy and smile when her heart is somewhere else? I don't want to hurt my parents but if things don't change soon, I'm going to end it all, because I can't go on this way much longer. G. F.

To talk of ending it all is absolutely unworthy of a girl in love with such an excellent young man as you describe. The attitude of your parents toward your engagement would be difficult to grasp if there weren't a good many parents like yours. They seem to regard their children as pets or toys kept for their own delight and amusement.

It is often necessary for a daughter confronted with your problem to take matters into her own hands and marry the man of her choice. However, it would be better to wait until she is legally of age—say 21.

Introducing Group

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: What is the proper way to introduce an arriving guest to a group? HOSTESS.

If the group in the room is small, say, six or seven people, an arriving guest is introduced to everyone. The name of the newcomer need not be repeated for each introduction, but it may be repeated for the benefit of the person or persons toward the end of the group, who may not have heard the name in the first introduction.

When the group is a large one, we should not attempt to introduce the arriving guest to everyone in the group. The hostess may think that it is socially awkward experience of being her not to do this, but the guest will be grateful to her if she does not put him through the twkward experience of being taken around the room and introduced to everyone. It is far better if the hostess introduces the newcomer to two or three people nearest her, and graciously brings him into the conversation by saying, "We were just talking about 'Madame Curie.' Have you seen it?" Later, at appropriate opportunities, naturally the introductions will informally "spread."

New Fall Fur Styles Tricky

By BETTINA BEDWELL

IF YOU happen to be shopping for a fur coat, as many women will this month, then here's a bit of good advice for you. Be wary.

Fur coat fashions this fall offer an uncommon amount of pitfalls for the lady with figure trouble. Be sure that the sleeves of your coat do not make you look like the playful buffalo in a head-on charge, for they are very big and may do just this. Look out, too, for the shoulder lines. Some of the most expensive coats come with drapery that makes shoulders seem knobby and clumsy. Also consider how your waistline seems to grow in some of the fitted coats being offered.

In short, since a fur coat is a big event in most lives, and runs into real money, be sure you get one that looks good on you personally.

Gertie Niesen strolling down Broadway in, of all things I never heard of, seaweed stockings!

ALL AROUND THE TOWN: Arthur Treacher is set to go overseas soon as a Red Cross worker . . . Eddie Davis, who follows the races, claims our weather has been the kind that only a mudder would love . . . Frank Krieg, who used to be Jackie Gleason's dresser and played a bit part in "Follow the Girls," was promoted to Ford Leary's understudy when Gleason left the show. Leary became ill Monday, and the ex-valet has been playing the comedy lead in the show since . . .

TIMES SQUARE CUFF NOTES: The Connie Haines-Dick Wesson romance has chilled . . . The most envied lass in the midtown sector is a Chinese beauty who resides in splendor on 55th st., 'way over East. Her beau, a very wealthy fellow, provides her with two Cadillacs to travel in (one open, one closed) and she spends more than $1,000 a week in one Fifth ave. shoppe alone! . . . Kay Kyser sent Georgia Carroll an unusual souvenir from overseas—a picture of herself full of bullet holes. He picked it up in an Army hut in the Philippines. Georgia had been a pin-up girl and evidently the hut had been strafed . . . Lou Levy was cornered in Lindy's the other night by a notoriously persistent song writer. "You remember me, doncha?" the tunesmith asked. "Sure," said Lou. "You gave me my first ulcer."

Boston After Dark

THE HEADWAITERS at the Latin Quarter will tell you that business hasn't been so rushing in two years . . . Inasmuch as no entertainer of heavy reputation is heading the floor show, the public's response to the new Latin Quarter show must be credited to Ray Kinney, the Irish-Hawaiian, and a Boston boy whose professional name is Jack Lester.

★ ★ ★

MR. LESTER is one of the West End Gershon tribe, another leading member of which is Ben Gershon, a popular and able newspaperman who toils for the Hearst Boston newspapers in an executive job in the editorial department . . . Ben has been a long time booster of his kid brother, Jack . . . Jack became serious about doing something to Hitler long before the United States entered the war . . . He took himself off to Australia and joined the Australian Army.

★ ★ ★

HE WORKED HIMSELF up to a captaincy with the Aussies . . . When he was given his honorable retirement papers a few months ago, Jack returned to show business . . . And—incidentally—to his native Boston . . . We, his fellow townsmen, had enjoyed a flash or two of the Lester talent in years gone by when he was director of Fanchon and Marco revues . . . These miniature musicals were staged so deftly that the name Fanchon and Marco became a valuable trade name . . . Jack did a chore or two for Earl Carroll and George White, too.

★ ★ ★

JACK'S RETURN to this, his hometown, was a significant one . . . For he submitted a proposal to the Latin Quarter's boss, Mickey Redstone, to inject some novelty into the local scene . . . The Quarter's "Hawaiian Revue" is the result . . . It is a well-produced show, with six or seven genuine Hawaiians in the cast . . . Ray Kinney is the singing orchestra leader of the aggregation and his key musicians are Hawaiians of mixed or pure ancestry like himself. (Ray happens to be one-quarter Irish) . . . Then there are four sinuous maidens who can be described quite aptly as luscious . . . They are decidedly authentic . . . Although no straw skirts of the shredded wheat, familiar pattern are undulating to the hula-dance, the girls are costumed lustrously in blue-grass skirts and white leis . . . They are very effective, the Latin Quarter's hula maidens.

★ ★ ★

THE FLOOR SHOW is produced professionally and with the attention to minutiae which reflects the work of a good director . . . Ex-Captain Jack (Gershon) Lester of Boston has done himself proud . . . The volume of trade has been so satisfactory that there is talk that the Quarter's annex The Apache Room may be opened to handle the main room's overflow.

★ ★ ★

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Ideal weather and The Mayflower Stakes with the clever two-year-old Air Rate as an odds-on winner got Suffolk Downs' four-days charity meeting off to a flying start . . . A huge and orderly betting crowd bustled about happily and good humor prevailed . . . When Announcer Babe Rubinstein told the large crowd of Russia's entry into the War against the Japs, applause was loud, in spite of the fact that the news seemed to be anti-climactic . . . The throng was keyed to hear an announcement of the Japs' surrender, it was apparent . . . You could hear them speculating excitedly about the war's end in the few moments between The Babe's introduction and the meat of his story.

BENJAMIN V. DROHAN, the Boston comedian and wit, is home again after an exciting year's tour of the European theater of operations as a USO headliner . . . Benny was the center of a tableful of listeners at the Music Box . . . Claire Nevulis, the South Boston girl in whose career Mr. Drohan and his wife, Marty, have long held a friendly interest, is singing at the Music Box . . . The former beauty contest winner is doing very well . . . At the Bradford's Circus Bar, a former star attraction of the same Music Box, Daphne Stauffer, is a hold-over hit . . . Speaking of hold-overs, the effervescent Harry Richman, better than ever, is a probable hold-over at the Bradford Roof . . . Turnaway audiences night after night since Harry's engagement are the answer.

GEORGE LAIT, whose father, Jack Lait, the editor, is substituting for Walter Winchell while Walter is on vacation, arrived in time for a party in his honor at the Statler Hotel . . . George is technical adviser on the picture "The Story of G. I. Joe," which opens at the Metropolitan . . . As correspondent for INS, George distinguished himself on several war fronts . . . He wears the Purple Heart as a result of wounds suffered in Africa.

Washington Scene

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—I do not know what is wrong with my constituents, unless it be that the damp weather is making them think longingly of drouth, but I have been deluged with requests for more of my experiences in the great OWI desert of Kansas, Nebraska, North and So. Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado and Utah.

Mayor LaGuardia

Although the subject brings back painful memories—life was not easy, having to wade through the bleached bones of sunkist dromedaries—I bow to the readers. After all, they have as much right to know as the Russians, in whom the OWI confided that our Mid-West is largely a barren waste.

The utter desolation of that vast land cannot be imagined - except, of course, by OWI. But we are not talking about OWI, are we? Why you little devils, how did you catch on?

The stark emptiness of that clam-baked-er, sunbaked-waste can possibly best be illustrated by an adventure one night in Montana. With my faithful Arab guide, the old Sheik El Mer Dav-Is, I approached the small outpost of Helena, which, if you remember your history, is the place they exiled Napoleon.

"This part is confidential, Mom. Would you mind leaving me alone for a few minutes?"

For some inexplicable reason, the old Sheik became greatly agitated. He shook so he could hardly perform his famous rope trick in which he makes facts disappear. Strange words of dread import fell from his lips.

"Buna, Buna!" he cried. "Buna, Buna, Butadiene—and other types of synthetic rubber! Something is in the wind!"

Something was. It was the Sheik El Mer Dav-Is.

ANOTHER NIGHT we were sitting beneath a Yucca tree, playing whist and Yucca, when a Leopard leaped at us from the darkness. Its eyes gleamed fiercely in the light of the campfire. But the old Sheik never faltered.

"Bet you six, two and even," he said, "you can't change your spots."

This embarrassed the Leopard because it seems he had neglected to bring a change of spots. He slunk into the night and when last heard of was interpreting the comic strips for Mayor LaGuardia.

★ ★ ★

ONE SUMMER we were crossing the Little Big Horn, a once prosperous region. In fact, it was here that Custer made his last grand. But conditions became so bad we had to take up snakecharming for a living.

This particular day we were charming a couple of Cobras—I forgot to mention that we were always charming to Cobras—when the Sheik said:

"I just read in the Barren Desert Times and Clarion that the Prince Amir Mohammed Ibn Abdul Aziz, second son of the King of Arabia, denies he proposed to Miss Mary Mohammed, a Detroit tycoon. The prince says he has one wife already and consequently will not betroth Miss Mohammed. Why do you suppose this is?"

"Maybe he doesn't have any typing he wants done," I replied. "Who can tell in these days, by Allah?"

★ ★ ★

THE CHILDREN of the desert were deplorably ignorant. They would never attend school. Instead they would grab their bubble pipes and play hookah. A group were disporting near oasis No. 46-A when a giant Roc, the huge bird that carried away Sinbad the sailor, swooped down. But, instead of snaffling a kid, it merely laid an egg.

"Look!" exclaimed the Sheik, when the Roc's cackling had subsided, "it laid an egg!"

"Don't be jealous," I retorted. "After all that Roc never achieved anything like your report to the Russians."

★ ★ ★

ONE EVENING while clipping the beard of the prophet—the Sheik ran a barber shop in Wichita on the side—he spied two veiled women passing. Love, as you know, flames fierce in the desert. They pretended to rebuff us at first, but the light of passion flamed in their eyes when the Sheik leered:

"Come up and look at my sand dunes."

I can tell you no more about this episode because love is sacred. Names of veiled ladies are not to be bandied about every camel depot.

★ ★ ★

THE DESERT brought out the best in men—also the worst. The soft, spicy odors of Aloes wood often inspired to poetry. Well do I recall the desert song, composed on the back of an old Bedouin, by the Sheik Omar K. MacLeish. Capturing the magic spell of the desert in every impassioned line, it read:

"Across the burning sands,
"A caravan I see.
"Morning is the night and night the morning. Love is a scorpion
"That stings my love—it STINGS—
"It stings it stings . . .

★ ★ ★

INASMUCH as this piece about the desert does the same I will now bring it to a close.

New Abbott Play Due at Wilbur

When "Mr. Cooper's Left Hand" arrives in Boston at the Wilbur Theater on Monday evening, Sept. 24, it will bear the production banner of George Abbott and Richard Myers, both of whom have been producing independently for many years. Their mutual enthusiasm for the comedy by Clifford Goldsmith, who incidentally is the author of "What a Life," is responsible for what may eventually become a permanent Broadway producing firm.

While co-producing is a new departure for Mr. Abbott who has been a solo producer since 1935, Mr. Myers has for the most part, preferred such combines. For many years he produced with Richard Aldrich, occasionally presenting a comedy on his own.

PLAN WORCESTER SHOW

Guy Palmerton will present "Night Must Fall" at the Playhouse in Worcester for one week starting next Tuesday. This will be the 12th production of the 1945 season for the Worcester Drama Festival.

FRED ASTAIRE, one of the myriad stars in "Ziegfeld Follies," which has its world premiere at the Colonial, Monday night.

Notables Will Attend 'Follies' World Premiere

More than three years of advance preparation went into the production of M-G-M's spectacular Technicolor "Ziegfeld Follies," which will have its world premiere Monday night at the Colonial at 8:54.

Judy Garland and her husband, Vincent Minelli, are among the many stars who will be here with Hollywood executives and Broadway celebrities to attend the opening of the Follies, which will play here only two weeks with only two presentations daily.

More stars than have ever been assembled on one film, melodies by famous composers, fabulous costuming and settings are promised by the producers, plus, of course, the flocks of beautiful girls glorified by the great Flo Ziegfeld.

Under the direction of Lennie Hayton, a 100-piece orchestra and chorus of 60 provide the background for the numbers, which range from a nostalgic medley of Ziegfeld hit tunes to the artistic highlight of the musical, the Brindisi aria from "La Traviata," sung by James Melton and Marion Bell.

Heading the large cast are: Fred Astaire, Edward Arnold, Lucille Ball, Marion Bell, Lucille Bremer, Fanny Brice, Judy Garland, Kathryn Grayson, Lena Horne, Gene Kelly, James Melton, Victor Moore, William Powell, Red Skelton, Esther Williams and the 14 famous Ziegfeld Girls.

New Strauss Show Seats Now on Sale

Seats are now on sale for Felix Brentano's production of "Mr Strauss Goes to Boston" at the Shubert. Opening Monday night, the new comedy with music features George Rigaud, Virginia MacWatters, Ralph Dumke and Ruth Matteson in principal roles, with music by Robert Stolz, choreography by George Balanchine, settings by Stewart Chaney and costumes by Walter Florell.

Ship's Cook Tastes Harsh Navy Broth

By AUSTEN LAKE

I TRUST THIS DOES NOT stretch my readers' patience beyond the normal limit of rubber. I offer the Navy court-martial case of Gabriel Joseph Asacker, ship's cook, as another example of how the legal mills of the service sometimes grind out unwarranted, careless penalties through irrational reasoning.

Austen Lake

Asacker was sentenced to a Bad Conduct Discharge and $234 fine on three charges totalling $3. Two of the court specifications were for theft of four snapshots valued at 50 cents each. A third was for loaning a shipmate $10 at $1 interest. A fourth charge, theft of $54, was dismissed as unproved. I say, after submitting the court transcript to a Boston lawyer for careful examination, that not one of the charges was proved. Rather all four were DISPROVED beyond reasonable doubt. And even if the three charges for which he was convicted had been proved, it was not justification for hanging the black tag of BCD on the man. Navy later remitted the $234 fine. But the BCD stands.

The odd part of this case is that Asacker got an able, smart defense by two Navy officers. They did a bang-up legal job of cross-examination and summation. They established more than reasonable doubt. Asacker in his own defense told a lucid story while the prosecution's witnesses were confused and contradictory. It's all there in the court transcript. Yet the court gave the sailor the works.

'Asacker Stewed For Two Years!

THAT WAS TWO YEARS AGO! Since then Asacker, unable to reconcile his mind, stewed inwardly, rankling over what he considers a permanent scar on his character. So he brought the case here. I think he got a bad shake and am sending the case to a Congressman for redress.

Here's the story! Asacker was an amateur snap-shot collector. He had an album where he pasted little memorabilia of his voyages. One day a seaman, named Alva Huber returned from shore leave somewhat ginned and boisterous. He had four photos taken in a honky-tonk gallery—what sort of pictures deponent saith not. But snaps apparently had some kind of fascination. Huber handed them around while barging hither and yon. So Asacker slipped two of them into his album as souvenirs. He didn't hide the album. It was there for anybody's perusal and kept openly.

Later, upon sobering, Huber discovered that $54 and two snapshots were missing from his wallet and assumed that whoever had the pictures also had the dough. So after some scouting he found that Asacker had the photos, something that the entire wardroom appears to have known too. Asacker made no secret of it. So Huber brought charges! The court found the cook guilty of "stealing" the snapshots but rejected the money theft.

At about the same time another seaman named Leslie King placed, or discarded, two other snapshots on the galley "spice shelf"—and doesn't the whole procedure sound too silly for words? The snaps kicked around for some time and finally Asacker picked them up and since they had no apparent owner, added them to his album. King admitted that he didn't notice their loss for two or three weeks—and so couldn't have been much concerned. Meanwhile the album was in plain sight.

Was that felony? If so, there's scarcely a sailor or soldier in the war who isn't guilty of larceny of various trivia with the wide free-masonary of service. Kids borrow or appropriate small objects of community interest all the time. But I never before heard of it being a court-martial offense. Because if Navy gives BDCs for snatching up such unconsidered trifles it wouldn't have a coroner's jury left to man its ships.

Asacker Does Shipmate a Favor!

ALL RIGHT! THEN ONE DAY a steward's mate named Ellis Wren came into the galley and asked if anyone had a loose sawbuck to loan him for shore leave. Asacker volunteered the dough. He didn't ask any interest, as Ellis testified when examined, to wit and viz. (p. 9): Q—Wren, did Asacker demand he be paid a consideration for the loan? A—No!

Wren deposited a leather jacket with the cook as security, which he got back, and gratuitously slipped an extra buck into Asacker's jeans when he refunded sawbuck, which when Asacker discovered he attempted to return. Was that a felony? If so, there isn't a serviceman today who isn't equally guilty and subject to BCD—including myself, who often borrowed sums while a soldier for odds and ends like crap games and furloughs to Paris. Yet this court elected to regard the hundred gratuitous pennies as usury. Canvass Scollay Square any night and you'll find borrowed dough in almost every bell-bottom trouser. The cheapest Shylock in the world wouldn't call $1 usury.

So these are the three charges which the Navy court deliberated ponderously and issued a weighty decision that Asacker was a sinister character unfit to associate with all the nice Navy boys. He was regarded as a contaminating influence. So they tarred him with a BCD and shot him down the chute. Shades of John Paul Jones, Decatur and Perry! Two sets of 50c snapshots stuck in an open album. A one buck gift of appreciation. At that rate the Navy would hand a gob life for borrowing a mate's clean jumper.

The court transcript concludes: "The recorder stated that he had no record of previous convictions against the accused." The verdict: "The court therefore sentences Gabriel Joseph Asacker, ship's cook, to be discharged dishonorably and to lose $234 in pay." Well, patch my skivvies! I haven't read such a caricature of justice since Alice in Wonderland attended the trial of the Jack of Hearts! Maybe the guy burned the captain's toast!

Pro Grid Refuses to Quit

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 (AP)—Professional football went ahead today with original training plans even though the ODT "disapproved" 13 nonchampionship games in September. Elmer Layden, National League commissioner, told a reporter that "we have to go right ahead and get the boys in shape." His attitude was that the games have "not been called off" by the ODT stand.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, ODT director, said that he would be willing to "re-examine the question" prior to the scheduled dates "in the light of the then-existing transportation situation."

Layden and other football men saw in this the possibility of playing some, if not all, of the nonchampionship games if Japan should surrender soon.

Some of the league teams, including the Washington Redskins, start workouts next week.

In any event, the league's championship schedule will not be affected.

Layden, vexed because he had to make his principal argument to ODT aides instead of the director himself, asserted that the nonchampionship games are as much a part of pro football's regular schedule as non-conference games are of a college team's schedule.

He said that calling them off would cost the league teams approximately $500,000 and make it extremely difficult for them to operate.

Green Track Coach Hillman Dies at 64

HANOVER, N. H., Aug. 9 (AP)—Harry Hillman, Dartmouth College track coach, died early today. He was 64 years old. Hillman died at the Dick's House of the college infirmary after being stricken two days with a heart ailment.

Hillman, a member of the physical education department faculty since 1910, developed many intercollegiate and Olympic track champions during his tenture as coach.

Harry Hillman

He was considered one of the foremost American coaches in field and running events.

Hillman, himself, was a triple Olympian, victorious in the hurdles in St. Louis Olympics in 1904 and competed in Athens in 1906 and London in 1908. In later years he coached American Olympic teams.

He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 8, 1881, and is survived by his widow, Hazel Quantin Hillman, and two children, Capt. Harold Quantin Hillman, of the Army Air Force just returned from a German prison camp, and Madeline Rogers Hillman, stationed with the WAVES at Jacksonville, Fla.

The last famous runner he entertained at Hanover was Gunder Hagg, Swedish star, when he appeared in this country on his latest tour.

Hillman was responsible for the construction of one of the fastest indoor board tracks in the country at Dartmouth.

Atom Bombs: Russia: Air Rate and Charity Score

By JACK CONWAY

WHAT A GLORIOUS day! . . . The sun has not looked so bright to me since before Pearl Harbor . . . Thinking of atom bombs as I came into the city from Jamaica Plain . . . And of what they will do to beat the Japs and bring millions of American boys home with victory.

Giving special attention to the efficiency of former Air Corps Sgt. Arthur Sullivan, back on his old job in the sports department, after 51 bombing missions over Africa, Italy and Europe . . . Not worrying about the ability of our service men to take up where they left off when they went to war . . . American youngsters like their home towns and their old jobs better than anything in the world.

A walk through the downtown area where men who think and who have accomplished things talked about the atom bomb . . . Science has given America the weapon with which to win the war quickly and with the minimum loss of our fine young men.

To Suffolk Downs for the opening of the four days of charity racing . . . Greetings from Allan Wilson and Eddie Goode, and later to a buffet luncheon for representatives of the Community Fund, Red Cross, Archbishop Richard J. Cushing's Charity Fund and the Disabled Veterans Fund of the American-Record-Sunday Advertiser.

Meeting the guests at the buffet luncheon who included Charles Francis Adams, president of the Greater Boston Community Fund; Michael T. Kelleher, general chairman of the 1945 War Fund campaign; Kenneth Wilson, executive director of the National War Fund, Inc.; Julius Haller, Red Cross representative; Publisher Harold J. Kern, representing the Disabled Veterans Fund of the American-Record-Sunday Advertiser; Ralph Frank, Greater Boston United War Fund representative; Dennis Delaney, representing Archbishop Richard J. Cushing's charities; Milton Kahn, Harold S. Fuller, Albert B. Carter, Robert P. T. Storey, O'Kelley Anderson, Lawrence Munch, John O. Stubbs, Thomas A. Pappas, James V. Toner, Harry Carey, Elmer Pillsbury, Chairman Louis Hoffman of the Massachusetts Racing Commission, Racing Commissioner Harry Allen, Allan J. Wilson and Edward F. Goode.

Marines Raise Flag

IN THE paddock as the horses prepared for the first race which was won by Supai with Jockey Bill Balzaretti up . . . walking down the tanbark to the track as Marines who had fought at Guadalcanal paraded behind their band . . . Standing at attention in the stewards' stand with a lump in my throat as the Marines raised the flag in the infield as their band played "The Star Spangled Banner" . . . And my thoughts racing around the world to every battle front where Americans are fighting to carry Old Glory to victory.

The parade of Supai, Pompous Fox, Van's Vickie, Undertow and Ellen Mist into the winner's circle . . . Horace Wade stopping me as I walked to the paddock to tell me that Russia had declared war on the Japs, and that he and Frank Ryan were waiting to verify the news before having Babe Rubenstein announce it over the public address system. Holding my breath in the paddock as I waited for Babe's voice.

"President Truman," said Babe, "announces Russia has declared war against Japan."

A tremendous roar of applause from the crowd . . . Still thinking of the lives of American boys that will be saved with Russia batting 1.000 in the war against the Japs . . . And happy in the thought that my two boys, like millions of other Americans, will soon be able to take up life where they left off when they entered service.

Wilson Out for Year; Operation Success

By HUCK FINNEGAN

DETROIT, Aug. 9—There was a spring in the step of the Red Sox today as they sauntered forth to engage the Tigers in the third game of the series. They had only seven actual pitchers, to be sure, but they were delighted to hear that the operation on Jim Wilson had been a complete success.

"Whew," they chorused, "that was good news."

Wilson was felled by a Hank Greenberg line drive in the 10th inning of the mid-week second game. Ferriss had lost the opener, 5-2, and Wilson took up the cudgels against Newhouser in the second game. Much depended on it. Ferriss' loss was his third in four starts, the Sox' seventh loss in eight games.

Came the 10th. Cullenbine opened with a single. Greenberg, hitting viciously all day, lined a drive so hard at Wilson he didn't have time to put up his hands. It hit him near the temple, in front of the right ear spun him around like a top, and dropped him as if hit with a sledge.

He was rushed to the Henry Ford Hospital where Dr. E. Szilagyi, resident physician, said he had suffered a fracture, feared an operation would be necessary to relieve pressure on the brain.

Wilson went on the operating table at 9 p. m., came off at 11 p. m.

The blow had shattered a bone between Wilson's right eye and ear. Fragments were removed, and the bone elevated to relieve pressure on the brain.

"We'll keep him here about three weeks," announced Dr. Schreiber.

That Wilson is through for the season is definite, but his mates are glad he's alive. He was unconscious when carried off the diamond, and they feared the worst.

"Another Ace Bailey case," some of them recalled. And all recalled the time eight years back when a drive off the same Greenberg's bat broke Fritz Ostermueller's jaw and teeth and gave him all sorts of trouble for years.

"This ball was hit even harder than the one that kayoed Osty," said Tom Daly, who saw both accidents.

Bulletin

DETROIT, Aug. 9—Tre wife of Jim Wilson, 23-year-old Red Sox right hander arrived by plane from Boston this morning and rushed to the side of her husband who is in Henry Ford Hospital with a fractured skull.

Wilson was reported "resting comfortably" after his delicate operation, performed last night.

Most forlorn figure on the diamond today was Hank Greenberg, whose line drive fractured Wilson's skull. Greenberg, like all other visitors except Cronin and Mr. Wilson have been refused admittance to the hospital.
